Sartoris' Warehouse Now Ready To Receive Salvage

Ask That Small Stuff be Brought to Depot; Heavy Metal Will be Taken Care of By Committee.

The local salvage committee held a meeting on Tuesday evening, Frank Abousaffy presiding.

It was agreed that in order to educate the local public as to what salvage was desired 1,000 circular letters would be printed and distributed to all householders. The letter will give in detail just what is expected from the householder.

The town was divided into sections and one man allotted to a section. It will be his duty to contact every householder in his section and explain verbally the necessity of saving salvage, how to get it to the local salvage depot and leave one of the circular letters for the householder's use. The men appointed for this job included Frank Abousaffy, W. Dutil, Capt. F. Watson, H. Sherratt, E. Beart and E. Salvador.

A number of air cadets were chosen to clean out the warehouse on Wednesday afternoon and get it ready for receiving salvage. During the past week, tires, paper and cardboard cartons were received by Geo. Derbyshire at the depot. Hours are from 9 to 8 p.m. Persons taking salvage by truck, can obtain the key to the warehouse from Alex. Easton at the Legion club.

Easter Services at St. Paul's United Church

Many Children Baptized; Senior And Junior Choirs In Attendance.

Very successful and largely attended Easter services were held at St. Paul's United church on Sunday.

At the 11 a.m. Easter morning service the church was filled to capacity with extra seating being used in almost every available space in the church. Both the junior and senior choirs were present. The junior choir sang "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" and the senior choir, under the direction of Dr. C. Rose, sang two anthems: "Open The Gates of the Temple" and "The Hallelujah Chorus." A very interesting and pleasing part of the service was the Sacrament of Baptism when twelve children were baptized, among whom were Beverly May Bond, Heather Elizabeth Fleming, Robert Gillies Fleming, Kent Richard Foster, Samuel David Jenkins, George Richard Jenkins, Donnie Doreen Jenkins, Kenneth Edward Laitwaite, Robert John Laitwaite, Neil Spencer Burke Lonsbury, Jaron Blair Summers and Patricia Dorothy Willetts.

At the morning service several new members were received. The following had their membership transferred: Mrs. Anne Alexandra Murdoch from St. Paul's United church, Golden, British Columbia; Mrs. Charlotte Lonsbury from Bellevue United church; Mr. and Mrs. John Van Maaron from Southminster United church, Lethbridge; and Mr. and Mrs. John Bilik from the Greek Orthodox church, Calgary. A number of new members were received on profession of faith as follows: Mrs. Frances Eugene Bond, Shirley M. Clary, Mr. and Mrs. William Kennedy, Rose Marie Kosma, Mrs. Nora Barnes Laitwaite, Clayton C. Rose, and Anne C. Wilson.

At the close of the morning service the Holy Communion was dispensed. In the afternoon an interesting baptismal service was arranged when Mrs. Margaret Grace Evans, her three children, John Robert, Ronald James, and David George, along with Mrs. Evans' two younger sisters, Isabella and Jessie McCulloch received baptism at the United church. Mrs. John Nelson and her little daughter, Patricia Elana; and Mrs. Kenneth Snowdon and her little son, Darryl Eric, received baptism at the Sunday afternoon service.

At the evening church service on Easter the senior choir sang very acceptably two anthems: "The King shall Rejoice in Thy Strength" and "Open the Gates of the Temple."

The Lenten services at the United church were brought to a close with a very fine Good Friday service with all the ministers who had assisted in the series. Revs. E. B. Arrol, J. E. Hogue, W. H. Irwin and Capt. F. Watson, present. The choir under the direction of Dr. C. Rose sang very acceptably numbers from the Sacred cantata "Olivet to Calvary."

Charlie Graham, of Calgary, arrived in town this week and will remain here for an indefinite period.

Mrs. J. Mellor and Miss Mamie McLellan spent the week-end at Fernie, where they were the guests of Mrs. Margaret Mellor. Mrs. J. Mellor will leave on Monday for Drumheller, where she will reside with her parents for an indefinite period. Miss Alta Mellor, of Fernie, is the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. Mellor.

Polish Airmen Unable to Accept Coleman's Invitation to Visit Pass

May Come to Coleman at a Later Date; Coleman Polish Society Extended Invitation.

The Polish Society with the aid of Alex. Easton, steward at the Coleman Legion Club, have been endeavoring to secure permission for the Polish airmen, stationed at Medicine Hat, to visit the Pass towns and mingle with the pass countrymen who would banquet them and show them the beauties of the Rockies.

This week a reply was received from W. L. Mackay. It reads: "I thank you for your letter of the 2nd instant with regard to the Polish airmen now stationed at this unit."

"I have consulted the Polish officer in charge of these men and he asks me to say that owing to the very concentrated work involved in the course which they are taking here it will be impossible to allow these airmen any facilities for contact with your town in the meantime, but later on, if circumstances permit, I shall communicate with you with a view to seeing whether these airmen may have an opportunity of visiting you or getting into contact with you or your friends. "Meantime it is desired to express appreciation of your regard. Yours faithfully, W. L. Mackay."

Blairmore Curlers Held Annual Banquet on Thursday Evening

Kerr Rink Presented With League Trophy; Will Condon Honored by Fellow Curlers; Dave Kemp Gets His Supper.

Blairmore curlers held their annual banquet in the Cosmopolitan hotel last Thursday evening. Guests were present from Bellevue club. Two Coleman rinks, who had joined the Blairmore club at the start of the season, were also present.

Mine host, James Smith, of the Cosmopolitan hotel, again served a feast fit for a king. Turkey and all the trimmings were placed in front of the diners with plenty of refreshments to wash them down. Despite the fact that everyone was thoroughly enjoying themselves nothing was overlooked. Dave Kemp, who had met with a serious accident recently and who still is a patient in Blairmore hospital, had his turkey supper served to him by President Harvey Carmichael in person at the hospital.

The league trophy was presented to the Jim Kerr rink by its donor Jim Smith. Accompanying the trophy were four cut glass bowls. The second prize was won by its donor, Lance Morgan. Dick Olds' rink won the Royal cup. Another pleasing feature in the presentation of prizes was the honor paid Milt Condon by his fellow curlers. Milt had been club secretary for many years and had given the club faithful and unstinted service and in appreciation of his work he was presented with a set of pipes. Accompanying the presentation was a list of curlers' names from Blairmore, Coleman and Bellevue who were present.

Miss Frances Short, of Calgary, is spending the Easter holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Short.

Freda Antrobus Given High Praise By Music Critic

Has Been Guest Artist on Cockshutt Male Choir's Seventh Annual Concert; "Is An Artist With An Assured Future."

It is with real enjoyment that folks of the Old Home Town read about the success of some young local artist who leaves home to make his talent against that of other young people from all parts of the Dominion.

Freda Antrobus, who for the past few years has been a student at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, has been much in the news as a result of her sterling performances at various concerts and churches in eastern Canada.

This week J. M. Merriman, music critic of the Brantford Expositor, gave Freda high praise as a result of her performance while a guest artist at the seventh annual concert of the Cockshutt Male Choir. Here is what he had to say:

"The visiting artists were accorded a separate ovation as they appeared for their contributions to the evening's enjoyment and they acquitted themselves with much distinction. Freda Antrobus, who sang songs by Horn, Wilks, McNutt, Bizet, Handel and other composers is an artist with an assured future. She possesses a coloratura soprano voice of real beauty which matches well her charm, poise and personality. Her upper register is clear crystal, her diction impeccable while she exercises at all times admirable breath control. Her remaining items were all beautifully sung, full of life and artistry. What is more they proved immensely popular from an auditor's standpoint."

In appreciation of the support given them by Mrs. Fred Antrobus the Junior Red Cross at Cameron school presented her with a beautiful Begonia plant, a bouquet of flowers and an Easter card.

OMISSION

In listing the various war organizations which would derive funds from the Slavonic Society's concert held in Coleman recently it was omitted to mention the Czechoslovak Red Cross.

ANOTHER SHIPMENT OF MAGAZINES SENT BY JUNIOR RED CROSS

This week 800 pounds of magazines were sent by the Junior Red Cross to the magazine depot at Halifax. This makes approximately nine tons of magazines shipped from Coleman.

Coleman is practically the only small town in southern Alberta that keeps a steady flow of magazines rolling in to the magazine depot. Any person having magazines, regardless of how few, and who have no further use for them can take them to Antrobus' Shoe Store where they will be gratefully received.

Freedom Of Speech

Free speech is one of the privileges which we are fighting today to maintain. Criticism of the government has had an unquestioned place in the development of our social system, but we are at war with nations in which government as we know it does not exist, and where the mandates of one group dominate the whole country. Those who do not think in agreement with this group, either die, or live their lives within the walls of a concentration camp. All of us know something of the methods of the Gestapo, so evil and cunning that distrust grows among friends and even among members of the same family circle.

In comparison, freedom of speech, together with other privileges which belong to our way of life, and in most cases have become things which we value now even more than we did in the days before the whole democratic system was in deadly peril. However, ever since the outbreak of this war, there has been an element of the public and the press in all the free countries, which has abused the men who are in high office, and unduly criticized or belittled the war effort. Because of the necessity of keeping information from the enemy, the government, or the leaders concerned, are often unable to defend their acts, but valuable time, which is needed for urgent matters, may have to be devoted to rectifying impressions caused by malicious rumors.

Impeding War Effort

This is a total war, and there are laws in all the democratic countries against anything which interferes with the prosecution of the war. In England this law has already been invoked against certain newspapers which have failed to heed warnings that they must cease to print articles calculated to undermine the morale of the people and destroy their faith in the government. For some time there has been a group in the British parliament, made up, it has been said, of disgruntled office-seekers, which has been attempting to create dissension. Mr. Churchill has recently dealt with two political disturbances within parliament and there has been indignation in many quarters, at the time and attention he has had to devote to these matters, when there is so much of vital importance to the war to employ his entire energies. Lady Astor, one of the most severe critics of the government in normal times, has appealed to parliament to forget petty differences and support the Prime Minister in this critical period of our history.

President Roosevelt recently made an appeal in the same vein, when he stated at a press conference that malicious stories, founded on rumor, had created false impressions which it had taken a great deal of his time to correct. The president ironically quoted the historian Livy, to show that in this respect we are not different from the people who in 168 B.C. caused their leaders to deplore the trouble that resulted by ill-informed or irresponsible critics.

Must Not Be Divided

Constructive criticism and helpful suggestion has, and always will have, its place in our system, but malicious accusations and petty politics should be forgotten for the duration of the war, and we should all unite in the common purpose of defeating the enemy. Major-General F. Worthington, a great Canadian soldier, who has returned from England to command a new armoured division, said in a recent interview that this is a people's war and that we must have "a great national faith in liberty, and maintain it." Continuing, he said: "We criticize democracy, but who is responsible? We can't go back to where we were. We must go ahead. If I live through this war and come back I intend to take an interest in public affairs. Now it is everybody's business."

To have faith in our cause we must not be divided by doubts and small controversies. An intelligent interest in all public affairs in itself reveals the lack of foundation for many of the rumors we hear, and gives us an understanding of the great problems which we must face as a united people.

Doing Her Share

A woman who works on the staff of a London canten decided she would take a course in a Government engineering training center. She rises at 4.30 a.m., cycles several miles to catch a train to the engineering shop. Stands at a lathe all day and then does her canten job in the evening. She says her husband and her sons are in the Services and she does not want to feel out of the war.

Safe For The Night

On her way to bed the maid looked into her employer's room. "The master's locked up for the night, ma'am," she said. Her employer looked puzzled. "Really, Jane?" she said. "He must have been very quiet. I didn't even hear him come in." "He hasn't, ma'am," exclaimed Jane. "The police station has just phoned."

Danger! Liver Trouble is Serious

Are you nervous and irritable—can't sleep or eat—tired out all the time? If you're like that, a faulty liver is poisoning your whole system! Lasting ill health may be the cost!

● Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands. If unhealthy, your body lacks this energy and becomes enfeebled—youthful vim disappears. Again your liver pours out bile to digest food, get rid of waste and allow proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order proper digestion and nourishment stop—you're poisoned with the waste that decomposes in your intestines. Nervous troubles and rheumatic pains arise from this poison. You become constipated, monach and kidneys can't work properly. The whole system is affected and you feel "rotten," head-sick, back-achy, dizzy, tired, run-down, ready for sickness and disease.

Thousands of people are never sick, and have won prompt relief from these miseries with "Improved Fruita-tives Liver Tablets." The liver is toned up, the other organs function normally and lasting good health results. Today "Improved Fruita-tives" are Canada's largest selling liver tablets. They must be good! Try them yourself NOW! Let "Fruita-tives" pay you back on the road to lasting health—feel like a new person. 25c, 50c.

"Run Down For Years, Was Perfect Health"

I was badly run down and terribly nervous. My digestion was poor and I was always constipated. "Fruita-tives" soon made me better and there is nothing like it for making you well and giving you new pep and energy. After years of bad health "Fruita-tives" means no feel better. Mr. Roy Duggan, Chatham, Ont.

"Long Years of Suffering, Now Full of Life"

For a long time I suffered frequent headaches and backaches. I could hardly get on my feet. I tried "Fruita-tives" and the pain came less frequently. A few weeks, they stood entirely still. Fruita-tives really made me feel like a new woman. Mrs. A. J. Schwartz, Galt, Ont.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.
By Alan Maurice Irwin

"We love our sergeants!" Do you remember the rest of the words that we sang to a bugle march in the last war? The song ended on a derisive note. But it was all good fun and while we may not actually have loved our sergeants we certainly got along well with them.

The "Colonel Blimps" have long been quoted as saying that "the N.C.O. is the backbone of the Army." I have a sneaking suspicion that they didn't say it when they were young officers, though.

Just who forms the backbone of the Army is, and probably always will be a moot point. Certainly it is a point that has no particular significance in an Army staffed by many officers who have been N.C.O.'s themselves not so very long ago.

What is more important is—where do N.C.O.'s come from? Who picks them? How does he pick? What qualifications must a man have to become a non-commissioned officer?

Let's go at those questions backward. Actually it isn't backward. It's the right way because the first step in making a N.C.O. is to find a man with the qualifications that fit him for promotion.

The first requisite is the intangible quality called leadership. What is leadership? A dozen different dictionaries will give you a dozen different definitions. So let's try our own! A leader is one who is instinctively given the respect and liking of his fellows and who has the ability to organize, direct and carry out an undertaking involving the co-operation of others.

You find them at all ages running sand-lot ball games, hockey teams and all sorts of organizations. They are the type of young fellows who do this sort of thing for the joy of it or for some civic reason—not the "bossy" type.

Well, that's the sort of fellow from whom you pick potential N.C.O.'s. And, the answer to the question "who picks?" is, every N.C.O., or officer who is on his toes. That is to say he "picks them" to the extent of passing along his observations to the Commanding Officer of the unit.

The average young soldier, working hard on his job, sometimes feels that promotion is hard to attain. It is, but he will probably be surprised to learn that there are probably more people on the lookout for N.C.O. material than there are looking for promotion. This army of ours today specializes in leadership. It is composed, down to the last private, of men who are trained to be capable of handling any situation without looking to higher quarters for guidance—if they find themselves on their own. All training, therefore, tends to prepare the modern soldier to accept responsibility and every commanding officer is constantly on the look-out for men capable of doing so.

There are no courses for N.C.O. qualification as such. No man in the active army goes to school definitely to qualify as a Corporal or a Sergeant. But as many likely men as possible are sent to special courses at all Advanced Training Centres, Small Arms Schools and the Junior Leaders School.

They may be privates, they may be officers, they may be sergeants when they attend courses—a few days ago I was taken into a classroom in which officers, N.C.O.'s and privates were all paying attention to the same lecture.

This was a course in which they were teaching instructors to teach. That's one of the reasons why you never hear an instructor parroting the words in the book—the way you used to.

And that's where N.C.O.'s come from in this man's army. And it's where officers come from, too.

In other words the Individual Citizen's Army is manned and guided by men who know their stuff, by men who show themselves in their everyday life to be capable, after specialized instruction, of leading.

A good N.C.O. today still barks out his orders, but he barks them with the crisp authority of the man who knows what he is doing. Better still his orders are obeyed with greater alacrity because his men know that he knows his stuff—and know that when they know as much as he does the first "dog's hind leg" waiting for them.

"Dog's hind leg"? A N.C.O.'s stripe. At least that's what we called them. The new army calls them "hooks."

Concentrated Food

Pemmican In New Form Now Part Of Lifeboat Equipment
Eskimos and trappers of the Canadian far north who ate their dried strips of caribou meat or pemmican, have passed on the idea of this highly concentrated form of food to save shipwrecked sailors from starvation.

All lifeboats in Britain's merchant navy are now equipped with nourishing compact foods made from a concentrated mixture of beef extracts of high caloric value. It is, of course, a much more scientific product than the pemmican of Finlmore Cooper, being a beef extract with a high fat content.

Each man is supplied with 14 ounces of it, enough for a fortnight. One third of an ounce, taken with other concentrated foods now forming part of the equipment in ships' lifeboats, will make a meal for one man, and special measuring spoons are supplied with which the extract is spread on the new type of ship's biscuits.

Great explorers of the past have carried this highly concentrated food on their expeditions. Supplies of it went north with Nansen and south with Shackleton and Scott; it was used by the Mount Everest climbers and the British airmen who made the first attempt to fly round the world, as well as in the 1928 Greenland expedition, the Washburn Alaskan expedition in 1930, the British Canadian Arctic expedition, the British Graham Land expedition and the British expedition to Greenland.

The new pemmican is also being widely used by British Allies, and the makers are busily coping with a very large wartime demand.

Flavor Will Be Same

Vitamin "B" Flour Designed To Improve Quality Of The Diet
Introduced to remedy Vitamin B deficiency in the nation's diet, the newly marketed new vitamin B white flour (Canada approved) has made its appearance on the Canadian market.

Containing several times more vitamin B and more iron than the customary white flour, products made from the new flour will not be different in flavor, food experts state. Creamy rather than white in color, and designed to improve the quality of the diet without affecting the cost.

Its introduction is felt to be a vital step toward remedying that strange paradox of dietary lack in B vitamins in this greatest of all wheat-growing countries.

Mental depression, lack of morale, fatigue and irritability, stealthy fifth columnist in our war activity, are said to be attributable in large measure to deficiency of the B vitamins.

Refused To Worry

Thomas A. Edison Always Confident His Experiments Would Succeed
Patience in his work and an unflinching confidence in the ultimate success of his great experiments kept Thomas A. Edison singularly free from worry.

Once an associate had to report to the inventor, in rapid succession, three failures of experiments which involved enormous expenditures of money and labor. At each report the inventor only smiled sympathetically and went on with his work.

Finally the associate, worn and worried from his failures, cried out: "Why don't you worry about it, Mr. Edison?"

"Why should I?" replied the inventor, with a grin. "You are worrying enough for the two of us."—Christian Science Monitor.

Red Cross Campaign

Organization Now Appealing To The Public For $9,000,000

After a lapse of nearly two years the Canadian Red Cross Society will appeal to the public for $9,000,000, the greater portion of which will be used this year and for the duration of the war, for the providing of food parcels each week to all British, Dominion and Colonial, and Canadian prisoners of war, which at the present time amounts to approximately 32,000, and which number is expected by the Red Cross, to be advanced shortly to a very much higher figure, not yet determined.

Saskatchewan has been asked to raise $260,000 of this amount, but it is hoped and expected that Red Cross headquarters in Regina that this amount will be far exceeded. The campaign officially opens May 11th and the Federal Government has asked that the campaign date close May 31st.

Following national economy of metal and paper, there will be no adult badges or buttons this year. The canvassers' receipts of one dollar or more is our Saskatchewan proof of adult membership. To save, paper, postage and office labor, there will be no extra membership card. Secretaries must give receipts for every cash donation, however small. Receipts should be carefully preserved by donors for 1943 income tax exemptions. There will be as little expense in the display of advertising as possible. We trust all will agree with these limitations of publicity, as determined by the Saskatchewan Red Cross Advisory Committee.

As some branches canvassed for membership amongst their officers and workers in the past summer and fall, these will be considered good for 1942.

Red Cross branches, of which there are now in Saskatchewan, 935, as compared with 250 at the opening of the war, have provided an excellent income during 1941 and thus far this year from local events. The Commissioner and all officers of the Saskatchewan Division are highly appreciative of the splendid contributions made through this practice, and it is hoped they will continue.

Several Plans Used

To Prevent Or Break Up Ice Formation On Planes

In British aviation circles a concerted attack has long been going on to overcome the effects of icing. Ice formation can occur in the carburetor, ailerons, wings and tailplane. Ice in the carburetor is overcome by careful designing and by feeding the mechanism with preheated air. The ailerons are fitted with a device for spraying onto the blades a liquid which prevents or destroys the ice formation. The wings and tailplanes are equipped with rubber casings which are caused to pulsate by air pressure, thus breaking up the ice as it occurs. Another system, used by the Germans keeps up the temperature of the leading edge of the wing by conducting through it the hot exhaust gases from the engines.—Brandon Sun.

Monetary Unit Of Haiti

The gourde, monetary unit of Haiti, is named after the common gourd. Christophe, a ruler of Haiti, confiscated and held, for a ransom of coffee, all the gourds in the country, in which the natives used to carry liquids. He then sold the coffee in Europe to establish a treasury.

Not A Bad Idea

The Tribe Acoma in Albuquerque, N.M., are clean-living Indians. Recently they invested $4,000 in defence bonds. As an afterthought they sent the government this wire: "We are glad to let Uncle Sam use our money, but please inform him that we do not wish the funds used to buy liquor for the soldiers."

MORE THAN FIFTEEN BOMBERS ARE FLOWN ACROSS ATLANTIC OCEAN TO BRITAIN EVERY DAY

Washington.—More than 15 American-built bombers are roaring across the Atlantic ocean to Britain every day.

This news has reached here from the receiving end of these record-breaking flights.

British sources, reporting through the British library of information to the British embassy here, have declared that on some occasions as many as 25 planes set their wheels down on English soil within 24 hours.

The flights are considered routine by the United States and British crews who take the planes across. The smaller two-engine bombers carry a captain, navigator and radio operator. The four-engine bombers carry a captain, co-pilot, navigator, radio operator and flight engineer.

The men in the ferry command of the Royal Air Force operate under Air Chief Marshal Sir Frederick Bowhill. Some are former U.S. army and navy pilots jetted for "disability," former airline pilots, men who flew weather bureau observation planes, pilots of crop-dusting planes, and soldiers of fortune who have flown in Spain, China and other countries.

All of them undergo a strenuous course of training at Canadian airfields in meteorology, navigation, flight command, blind flying and firing of machine guns and light cannon.

With almost clock-like regularity, they haul off 15 tons of airplane and cargo from an unnamed airport and head out across the ocean. Every plane is crammed to the hatch covers with spare airplane parts, medical supplies, concentrated foods, mail and perhaps a diplomat or a newspaper correspondent in a hurry to get abroad.

They often fly in weather so severe that the runways must be blown clear of snow to make a takeoff possible and the crews must eat well before they start, because at 20,000 feet their sandwiches and fruit are frozen to the consistency of wood and their hot coffee in flasks is turning to ice before they can get it into a cup.

Most of the crew are teams which work together, eat together, sleep in the same barracks and go out on parties together, sergeants and captains mingling without regard to rank.

The flights sound simple. After tearing his plane off the ground with the help of 4,000 horsepower in his engines, the pilot fixes on his course, turns over the controls to the Sperry automatic gyro pilot and apparently relaxes.

But it could hardly be called relaxation. He and his crew members are constantly scanning their instruments, measuring air speed, altitude, gasoline consumption, drift of the plane off its true course, engine temperatures and making regular checks on the sun or stars to check their compasses.

They are aiming for a small point of land 2,000 miles away and unless two men making observations agree within a small fraction of error they go back and calculate over again. One degree of miscalculation means the difference between death and hot coffee, plus 12 hours in bed.

The ferry pilots used to fly in formation across the Atlantic, but not any more. A few close calls taught them better and now each plane takes off according to pre-arranged agreements and gives the plane ahead and the one behind him at least 1,000 feet altitude in elbow room.

To date there never has been a collision accident in the air.

During the summer most of them return by air, and some crews have made the round trip three times in a month.

On the tips to England they carry an unofficial cargo of American and Canadian tobacco, sugar, tea, novelties and other presents for their friends.

On the trips to England they carry principal items is the watch of a friend being carried to an American or Canadian ship for repairs.

The ferry command focuses on efforts of the pilots to beat the present speed record of six hours and 40 minutes, because of the necessity of conserving gasoline.

To date only one plane out of hundreds has been officially listed as missing.

The German radio has claimed that not even half of the American-built planes ever reach England but there is no record of any ferry plane ever having been fired on.

A WAR ARSENAL

Malcolm MacDonald Describes Part Canada is Playing

London. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom high commissioner in Canada, painted a glowing picture for the British press of Canada as one of the most important arsenals, larders, mints and manpower pools for the Allied war effort.

In a prepared statement, which he read to newspapermen before answering a barrage of questions about the Dominion, the high commissioner described the part Canada is playing in the production of munitions, ships and food, and told of her financial contribution to Britain and of the growing strength of the army, navy and air force.

During the last few months, he said, Canada had borne her share of defeats and disappointments but the people were wholly prepared to take bad news with the good and were solely concerned with getting on with the war.

"They are eager to play their part in every way they can to promote harmonious and efficient comradeship in arms among the United Nations," he said. "Canadians are proud to be in this fight with us, and their only anxiety is that they shall go on increasing their effort until we are all victorious."

Gets Second Destroyer

New York.—The BBC broadcast in Ankara announced the arrival in Turkey of a second destroyer built in Britain for the Turkish navy. The broadcast, heard here by CBS, said the warship was turned over to the Turks at Alexandretta.

PACIFIC SERVICE

Planes Are Being Ferried From United States to Australia

Sydney, Australia.—A Pacific ferry service, similar to the Atlantic ferry command of the R.A.F., has been inaugurated between the United States and Australia, it is now permitted to reveal.

A young Australian, who served in the R.A.F. early in the war and later was engaged in the Atlantic ferry service, is one of the pilots now flying bombers from American factories to Australia.

He said not a single plane in the Pacific service has been attacked by the enemy.

LOSE CITIZENSHIP

Property Of Prominent Norwegians Confiscated By Quibling's Officials

Oslo. Fifty prominent Norwegians, including former Premier John Nygaard and Carl Hambro, former president of the Storting (parliament), were deprived of their citizenship by the Nazi-controlled Norwegian ministry of interior. Their property was confiscated by Quibling's administration.

(No reason was assigned for the action, but many of those punished escaped to Great Britain when Norway was invaded and some are active with the Norwegian government in London.)

Death For Hoarders

Berne, Switzerland. The first two death sentences under Germany's drastically-strengthened food regulations have been handed down against two women who were nurses in a children's home, despatches from Berlin said. They were found guilty of hoarding four tons of sugar, candy and soap.

Represents War Cabinet In Middle East

Richard G. Casey, Australian minister at Washington, has been named to succeed Captain Lloyd Lyttelton as minister of state for the Middle East, London announced. As such he becomes a member of the British war cabinet. He will maintain his headquarters in Cairo. Mr. Casey is the first dominion statesman to take a position in the war cabinet. He will "represent all measures necessary for the operation of the war in the area other than the conduct of operations," it was explained. He is shown here with his wife and children when they arrived at Washington in March, 1940.

ARMED GUARDSMEN

Assigned To Practically All U.S. Ore Freighters On Great Lakes

Cleveland, O.—Armed coast guardsmen are being placed on virtually all United States ore freighters plying the Great Lakes.

The guards district headquarters announced that principally as a precaution against sabotage a detail of two to four men under a petty officer would be assigned every U.S. vessel moving through the Detroit, St. Clair and St. Mary's rivers, Lake St. Clair, and the Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) locks and harbors.

The nearly 300 freighters normally haul from upper lakes ports some 85 per cent. of the iron ore consumed in the United States.

BONUS REFUSED

Government Has Rejected Request Of Retired Civil Servants

Ottawa. Renewed applications on behalf of some 6,600 supernumerated civil servants for the cost-of-living bonus have been definitely rejected by the government. It was learned.

For several months there have been repeated requests to the government for a bonus for pensioned former government employees but without success.

Recent representations by the Dominion Association of Supernumerated Civil Servants resulted in the definite decision by the government that no bonuses would be paid.

Work On Railways

Berne. Eighty thousand German women, 90,000 foreign civilians and 20,000 prisoners, have been put to work on German railways to fill the gaps caused by the call of skilled workers to military service said reports from Germany.

Nazis Arrest Teachers

London. The Norwegian telegraph agency reported that more than 1,000 school teachers had been arrested in German-occupied Norway and that detentions were continuing throughout the country.

REPRESENTATION GIVEN CANADA ON JOINT ASSIGNMENT BOARDS IN WASHINGTON AND LONDON

Ottawa. Canada will have direct representation upon the munitions assignment boards in Washington and London although organization of these bodies is not yet fully completed, it was learned on good authority.

These joint assignment boards will direct the distribution of the pooled production of United Nations war industries. Canada, as one of the greatest producers will be directly represented on whichever board this country's production is pooled with, or on both, it is understood.

A joint production board also may be created in the near future, possibly headed by Lord Beaverbrook, who

The entire British army—using real shells and bombs for battle training—is stepped up in efficiency and fighting pitch to the level of the commands, according to a cable from London released by the British Press Service in New York.

Under this revolutionary plan every man in the infantry will soon be as physically tough and as highly trained in individual initiative as the commands, it added. All soldiers are now subject to rigorous courses in battle schools in every division. Drill routine eliminates academic parade marches, formal salutes, etc., and the men work as combat teams in real battle.

A British United Press despatch from London said that no official statement had been made there but that the "Commando technique" was being put into effect in all training methods and that there was wide agitation to make Commando training universal.

The present training is realistic, the British Press Service said. "It is no quiet country valley; it is a sector filled with the noise and cloudded with the smoke of real bombs, real shells and real bullets," it continued.

Even casualties occur in this under-fire training. Heavy barrages are studied beforehand and the men learn quickly to keep their heads down and to seek protection from every available shelter in their advance across the bomb-trembling ground. However, wounds still are uncommon in this training period.

"Light tanks from the school plunge through a hail of machine-gun fire over huge holes in the earth, blasted out by exploding land mines. Such experience teaches the men to take cover effectively and to withstand the sound of battle."

The men are constantly moving for 16 hours a day. The shock troops even run to meals—that is, if they are having a meal that day. For they are trained to fight all day and all night without food and in forced marches across the countryside carrying full equipment.

now is in United States, it is reported here.

In the face of rapidly increasing organization of joint committees of the United Nations, such as the Pacific Council in the United States which had its organization meeting in Washington, Prime Minister MacKenzie King let it be known what this country's attitude has been.

Through an official spokesman, the prime minister advised newspapermen here that the government, while making sure that Canada is afforded the fullest facilities for presenting this country's viewpoint at all international deliberations, did not desire or attempt to seek representation on international bodies merely as a matter of right.

But where matters specifically concerning the Dominion are before such international bodies the government has insisted on representation, the spokesman said.

Otherwise the feeling has been that no attempt should be made to embarrass other governments or to make demands which might lead to overloading international war committees with the possible result that their usefulness would be prejudiced.

In the earlier days of the Pacific councils, first set up in London and now duplicated in Washington, Canada took the stand that it was mainly concerned with South Pacific matters and the country was not specifically interested. No pressure was exerted for Canadian representation. Mr. King made this plain in a House of Commons speech recently.

Now that it is apparent the council will take in the whole Pacific area and its membership has been extended to Australia, New Zealand, the Netherlands, China and Canada, as well as the United Kingdom and the United States, Canada may be more vitally concerned.

Manitoba Legislature Prorogues Winnipeg.—The first sessions of the 24th legislature of Manitoba, which opened Dec. 9, has been prorogued.

MAY GRANT FARM WORKERS POSTPONEMENT, BUT WILL NOT BE EXEMPTED FROM SERVICE

Ottawa.—Labor Minister Mitchell said in a statement that essential farm workers may be granted indefinite postponement of, but not exemption from, military service under the government's new national selective service plan.

Mr. Mitchell's statement, issued through the labor department, said there appeared to be widespread misinterpretation of the regulations in this regard in a few localities.

He said there appeared to be "an erroneous impression that all farmers were 'frozen' on the land from now on."

Under the new orders, the statement said, a man of military age who was chiefly employed on the land on March 23 is placed in a preferential position but he is not automatically excused from anything. March 23, 1942, is the effective date of this particular provision.

A farm worker who receives notice to report for military service or medical examination must still answer that notice, Mr. Mitchell emphasized. The man called must communicate in writing with the divisional registrar who sent out the notice, as was the case before the new regulations were introduced.

Now, however, instead of actually undertaking military training, the farm worker may apply to that registrar for an indefinite postponement on the grounds that his farm work is essential to maintain production. He need not prove that claim but it may be challenged.

The labor minister's statement added that unless the national war service board is convinced that the man is not an essential worker in agriculture, it shall grant him a postponement until further notice.

While this postponement may be granted, failure to respond to the initial notice to report still makes the farmer, as any other man similarly called, liable to penalties under the law.

Australia's Best Commanders Come Home To Fight

MacArthur commands the United Nations forces in Australia. Serving with him are the crack Australian commanders who have seen service on the battlefields of the Middle and Far East. Recalled from the Middle East were (left to right), Maj.-Gen. J. J. Murray, Maj.-Gen. C. A. Clowes and Maj.-Gen. S. G. Savage. They will soon be working out plans for joint action under the unified command.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Plainer Living in Store

Various writers are stressing the unpreparedness of the Democratic nations to meet the threat of a new world order by the Nazis and the Japs. In this issue is printed a letter by Brigadier General Burnham, a retired officer living on the Arrow Lakes in British Columbia. We recommend it to our readers.

In December Winston Churchill in addressing the United States Congress, asked: "What kind of people do they think we are?" referring to the Nazis. Events have proved that to a large extent we are just the kind of people that they thought we are, for years of soft and complacent living have left us unprepared for total war, though now from sheer necessity and the danger of defeat looming, we are getting into our stride.

We have prided ourselves on our prosperity, boasted of having more motor cars, refrigerators, radios and many other things than countries which we considered more backward, such as Japan. While we enjoyed these things, they were buying our scrap iron and sacrificing personal comforts, training their youth in the use of arms, building up a navy and air force to wipe out the white man's influence from the eastern hemisphere, and so far they have wiped it out in each of the British possessions attacked.

It is the truth that is unpleasant, and we have ourselves to blame. We are only now realizing that if we are to win the war, we have got to do without many of the things we formerly looked on as necessities. We are far from out of the woods. It looks as if we are in for a few years of war to overcome German and Japanese aggression. There can be no slackening of effort, of paying heavy taxes, of walking instead of riding on rubber tires. Industrial effort must be largely turned towards winning the war instead of manufacturing those things which contributed towards our pleasures and easy living. We will likely have to live harder yet as the war proceeds.

Vote "Yes" In Plebiscite

On April 27 the national plebiscite is to be held. As there are no rival candidates as in an election for the House of Commons, there will not be the same keen interest aroused. Yet the matter is of even more vital interest in our war effort than the election of representatives under normal conditions. People have become so accustomed to being called for by party campaigners and hauled to the polls that it has become a bad habit. Under gasoline restrictions and lack of party rivalry, there will be few cars hauling people to vote. It is people's duty to vote without waiting to be asked. We have little time for those who say—"if you want me to vote you'll have to come and get me." It is the spirit of the slacker who says something similar when asked if he will volunteer for active service.

The Canadian Legion has been urged by its chief executive to do all in its power to get out the vote, and local branches will cheerfully assume this responsibility. The Legion is not asking people to do something which it is not itself doing. Its members went through one world war, some have fought in earlier wars, therefore they are justified in urging interest in the plebiscite. It will help to strengthen the government in raising men for the active forces. Total war means just what the words imply—that we are all in it and must bear our share of work and responsibility. Every citizen should regard it as a patriotic duty and as a measure of self defence to vote "Yes" for the plebiscite. Co-operate with the Canadian Legion in urging friends and neighbors to go to the polling booths.

Time for Gardening

In Britain people cultivate vegetable gardens from the sheer force of necessity to relieve the food shortage. And they get some pleasure from it as well, even if it is only on a window garden that care may be bestowed. There is magic in growing things. Even watching potted plants develop in the house is interesting. In the west we have not the same necessity to plant vegetable gardens to the extent that is necessary in Britain, yet many do so for the joy they derive from being able to pick their own for the table, right fresh from the garden. It is a healthful hobby. It is a most pleasant diversion, from which you get beauty as well as utility. The man of the house, after a hard evening's work in the garden, sits back with a contented air and in the twilight reflects on his accomplishment, and speculates how high the trees and shrubs will grow in another week, or what will be their total height by the end of the season; how much they have grown since the year before. Undoubtedly there is much pleasure and health to be derived from gardening, in making two blades of grass to grow where none grew before. Vacant spots in any town can be beautified and transformed from eyesores into spots beautiful to behold. Gardening is one hobby you can indulge in without having to buy expensive sports equipment. A shovel, a hoe, a lawn mower and a few simple tools will be a good investment in health and contribute to pride in your home surroundings. Moreover, birds are attracted to gardens, where they hunt for insects and add to the interest of the place.

ONE WAY OF LIFE

When the great fortress of Singapore, the bastion of the British Empire in the Far East, fell to the soldiers of the Rising Sun, British prestige took an awful slump. And, when the German squadron sailed up the Channel and thumbed their noses at John Bull, we felt that we were at the parting of the ways. The siege of Troy lasted 7 years. Singapore, the greatest fortress of all time, surrendered in 7 days. Disaster follows disaster in monotonous sequence and with 100,000 of our soldiers in enemy lands, it would seem that we are due for a knock-out. That may happen if the Germans get the French fleet at Toulon. The war effort is stalled and the future is full of foreboding. We are fighting a resourceful and efficient enemy who has brains and uses them.

The little yellow men have shown the world what a poor nation can do when they have the will and courage to do it. Japanese troops are strewn all along the Far Eastern horizon, which would indicate a supreme confidence in the maintenance of superiority in the air, and on land and sea. Their success is phenomenal. After 10 years of indecisive struggle in China, Japan now challenges the world, which would appear to be a foolhardy venture. They are a poor nation, without natural resources but with a population that will work and fight. In days gone by we would do both, but in the effete democracies there appears to be large numbers who are not inclined to do either.

It is often said that we want the truth. At that memorable conference at Jerusalem, Pilate asked, "What is the Truth." Nothing is so dangerous as the truth, and the truth is that for 25 years, mentally, morally, physically and culturally, our race has been on the toboggan slide, and everything has been grooved for the occasion. The democracies have thought only in terms of social security and the maintenance of the high standard of living, ignorant and forgetful of the fact that social security is valueless without national security.

We have enemies without and enemies within, and those within are no less dangerous than those without. Among many others are Lady Nicotine, Old John Barleycorn and sordid politics. We hear a lot about the preservation of our way of life, and judging from the crime sheets, it is not a good way. Every man would live like a millionaire. A democratic nation with all its social legislation will soon be the loafer's paradise and the taxpayer's graveyard. Only those who think and fight have the right to survive. We have the equipment for both thinking and fighting, and the pity is that we so often do neither.

The world is at war and along the road to victory or defeat, each milestone is marked by the word, "Retribution." As we trudge along the blood-red trail, the ghosts of 2,500,000 Armenians, abandoned by so-called Christian nations after the last war, point at us the finger of scorn. For our betrayal of Armenia and Montenegro, we now pay and pay plenty. It is retribution.

F. E. BURNHAM,
Brigadier-General.

CURIOUS SALVAGE

The Master Plumbers' Association of Ottawa, have initiated a salvage drive of their own to collect all kinds of metals used in their trade. On repair jobs they ask their customers to donate the broken plumbing and heating equipment which is being replaced. So far, the Plumbers have gathered up over 50 tons of iron and steel, and some non-ferrous metals. The most curious piece of metal salvage so far donated to them was a jacket and coil from an old refrigeration unit. The coil in this unit was made of two-inch wrought iron pipe which, if it could be unwound and straightened out, would stretch 180 feet!

TOWER HILL GUNS

The centuries-old guns on Tower Hill have also gone to the scrap heap, as have, of course, any family collections of antique arms and military trophies. Used torch batteries and high tension batteries which were considered useless are now conserved for their handsome yield of brass (for uniform buttons), copper (for shells), zinc (for camp utensils) and graphite (for machine grease), as well as carbon and manganese ore. A register of old cars which are to be broken up is kept by the Ministry of Supply to that none shall be wasted and a new department of the Ministry, the Reconditioned Civil Stores, deals with wrecked army vehicles. The wrecks are taken to pieces, and all repairable parts mended and sorted. These parts are then available, at a very low cost, to car repairers in need of spare parts. Wrecked ships, as well as wrecked cars, make their contribution; 1,000 tons of scrap a week are recovered from them.

CANADIAN TROOPS MAKE FRIENDS IN ENGLAND

This is the ninth in the series of articles written by Hugh Templein, of the Tergus News-Record, exclusively for the weekly newspapers of Canada. Mr. Templein flew to Britain as a guest of the British Council and was given an opportunity to see what is being done in Britain in wartime.

It was natural that a Canadian on a visit to Britain should want to see as much as possible of the Canadian Army overseas. Some of the Canadian editors had sons or brothers in the service. Every one had lists of addresses of boys from home.

Actually, it wasn't so easy to find any individual soldier. The Canadian units are scattered over much of the southern part of England, and while I was there, they were taking part in large-scale manoeuvres, the bulk of the Canadian Corps moving around London and up towards the coast to meet a pretended invasion. It was interesting to see this large army on the move, but hard to locate units or individuals.

A few days after I arrived in London, a rather unpleasant incident occurred.

The first six editors reached the city late on Saturday night. We were met by E. D. O'Brien, of the British Council, who steered us through the blackout to the Savoy, got us settled in our rooms and by ten o'clock, had us sitting down to dinner at the table reserved for us in the grill room. We had hardly begun to eat before a reporter edged himself into the circle, proceeded to order himself a meal at the expense of ours, topped it off with a bottle of whiskey and proceeded to "interview" me because he was beside me. It was an exhibition of nerve such as I had seldom beheld, and I suspect our host seethed inside, but did not want to say anything in front of his guests. As the bottle got lower, I wondered what the interview was going to sound like.

As it turned out, it wasn't as bad as it might have been, but my name was spread over Britain as the editor of a great group of weekly papers, stretching from coast to coast.

That brought in what the radio and movie people would call "fan mail," but which might more properly have been called "letters to the editor."

One of them was a scurrilous postcard, denouncing the conduct of the Canadian troops in Britain. The writer said he was coming to the Savoy the next morning to tell me all about them. I made enquiries, found that the writer was an Australian in London, not too well thought of himself and a bit of a crank. The English people resent what he had done. The man turned up next day, but I made sure I was away at the time.

Troops Have Excellent Record After that, I made it my particular business, wherever I went, to ask about the Canadian boys in England and low. I slipped away from the group and talked with the English people in their gardens. I got official figures from Canadian Army Headquarters. I talked with civilians and English soldiers. Before I left London, I had satisfied myself beyond any doubt. The record is not perfect of course, but there were few serious crimes or misdemeanors. I learned little and much good. The one definite episode in which a group of Canadian soldiers took part rather amused me, though perhaps I should have been shocked.

The British people cannot speak too highly of the Canadians. Many of our soldiers are billeted in private houses, especially east of London in the villages near the Thames. These boys have been adopted as members of the families.

One day, during manoeuvres at Aldershot, I went along the street asking the residents what they thought of the Canadians. I asked if they had any complaints, if there had been any trouble. Almost invariably, they had nothing but praise. I never heard any criticism of the Second Division, which was in the district at the time although there was some of another division which had been there earlier. Aldershot has probably seen more of the Canadians than any other town.

The best authority is doubtless the Provost Marshal of the Canadian Headquarters staff. I had dinner with him one night at the quaint old East Indian and Sporting Club in London. He gave me comparative figures. It might be expected that the record of the English Regiments, living near their own homes, would be better than that of the Canadians. Actually, it isn't. Crime among the soldiers of the Canadian Corps is only one-third as prevalent in proportion to the number enlisted, as in the Imperial Forces. In spite of driving conditions that are strange to Canadians, the highway accident records of Canadians is better in proportion to the number of vehicles. Investigation of accidents showed that there was a tendency to blame the Canadians for more than their share. For instance a woman called up one day to say that a Canadian Army vehicle had damaged her fence. When she knew it was Canadian, she said it had a hippopotamus painted on the side. It was explained to her that the hippopotamus was not a Canadian animal; the vehicle belonged to another Dominion.

A Few Actual Incidents Perhaps a few simple stories will illustrate the attitude of the English people to the Canadians.

In a small city near London, friends called a taxi to take me to the railway station in the black coat. When the driver arrived and found I was a Canadian, he asked if I would mind if he went around by his house and brought his wife along; she would like to talk to a Canadian. When I left them at the station, he would not accept a penny from me.

Waiting for the train in that same station, I talked to three English Air Force men in the R.A.F. They were loud in their praise of the Canadians because of an incident that had just happened. They had ordered lunch at the restaurant, but the service was slow. An English Major came along after their orders were in and insisted on being served first. The girl at the counter refused. A bit of an argument had arisen till it was settled by an R.A.F. officer of higher rank who took the part of the boys. He had given the major a bit of a lecture. "After all," he concluded, "we are all fighting for the same King."

One night, the London Standard had a cartoon. It showed an English girl, rather embarrassed, introducing a young R.A.F. man to her parents, with the words, "I picked him up along the road." The next day, I sat beside the editor of the Standard at a luncheon. He told me the story.

He and his wife had been driving to the country home the previous Sunday. Along the road they caught up to a young couple with their thumbs up. Hitch-hikers are not common in England but one had an R.A.F. uniform so they stopped to pick them up.

They learned that the girl had just met the Canadian. In fact, it was his first week in England. She invited him to her home and he accepted. As they neared the place where she was to get out, she began to have doubts. Perhaps he wouldn't be welcomed. The editor was a good sport. He offered to take the Canadian to his home and that was agreed upon, but as the girl got ready to go, she changed her mind. She wouldn't give him up, no matter what her parents said. So he went along with her.

I have already mentioned the wide recognition given us at Coventry. When a large part of that city was wiped out, most residents escaped with their lives but little else. Canadian garments clothed the people; Canadian travelling kit fed them; Canadian medical supplies were used to ease their pain. Standing in the midst of the ruins of Coventry Cathedral, the Provost presented to each Canadian editor a priceless souvenir, a cross made of two ancient nails picked up among the ruins.

Actually, every person I met had high praise for Canada and Canadians—and it was sincere, not merely a polite gesture. Many of them had visited Canada. There was Lord Biversdale, head of a great steel company, who knew my own town of Fergus; Sir Harry Brittain, who asked particularly about Acton, Ontario, because he had visited there, his home being in Acton, England; Winston Churchill, who promised to visit Canada again as soon as he could, a promise since carried out; James Bone, London editor of the Manchester Guardian, who lost his clothes when his boat was torpedoed and he returned from Canada; and the taxi driver who used to work at Jasper Park and believed it was the most beautiful spot on earth.

Canadian Soldiers - English Girls Many Canadian soldiers are marrying English girls. That is not surprising, but few in Canada realize how many weddings there have been. The commanding officer of a Western Ontario battalion told me that 100 of his men had married English and Scottish girls. He said they were good girls, of the best types for he insisted on interviewing every one before he gave his permission for the marriage to take place.

Now that is something that Canadian relatives of soldiers and particularly Canadian girls, should not overlook. B. K. Sandwell, who was with me, believes that a certain "glamour" surrounds Canadians in Britain. He ascribes this in part to the movies and novels. Perhaps he is right. At a big aircraft factory, I saw a girl sitting at a table reading a paper covered novel, entitled "Love in the North." On the cover was a huge Canadian youth dressed in fur parka, hugging a beautiful girl, while the aurora borealis made a brilliant background. Bishop Benson who has spent much of his life in the North was much amused.

I think there is a more practical side to it than that. The English believe we live in a land of plenty and wealth. Just now, when it is so much the can't get, that idea spreads. A Canadian is considered a "catch," and from what I saw on the streets and elsewhere, English girls are out to "get their man" in wartime.

From the soldier's point of view, I believe loneliness plays a part. The boys don't get enough letters from home. Perhaps they get plenty at first but the number falls off. Some don't get any. They want the news from home, but even more, they want to think that they haven't been forgotten. They need letters even more than they need parcels—news, gossip letters telling what people at home are doing. And they like the home town newspapers, which pass from hand to hand. Conings or service clubs would be good good acts if they would subscribe for the local paper for all boys from their towns who are overseas.

Parcels are appreciated, of course. The troops are adequately fed, but they get few luxuries. Remember that when you send parcels. Some things are luxuries in England that are plentiful here. Candies are most welcome. I saw candies only twice in England and they were really confections, not real candies. I would have given most for some real ones. Send potted fancy meats and cheese, marmalade and jams in tins (not glass), braces and garters and razor blades.

Illustrated magazines, such as Life, are heavy to send, but are most welcome. Send a few of them to your soldiers, or to Mr. A. S. G. from Canadian Army Headquarters, Cockspur Street, London.

But remember, letters are best of all. There can't be too many of them.

"THUMBS UP"

Motorists are familiar with "Thumbs Up" on highways adjacent to training centres in Alberta, and in most instances respond by giving men in uniform a thumbs up. The wide-spread practice of hitch-hiking is frowned on by military authorities.

In "Contact," the official monthly paper of R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, Ont., the following interest, particularly as Macleod has two air training centres from which trainees like to get out to the cities and surrounding mountain resorts:

"It's a moot problem, this business of getting a free ride home on a forty-eight hour pass. The matter of a railway fare looms rather largely in the eyes of an AC2, Standard Group, at $1.30 per day, of which sixty-six cents are deducted for dependents. With a semi-monthly pay of $9.50 from which must be deducted $2.00 for cleaning and laundry and a further $3.50 for smokes, shoe polish, etc., a trip, even to Toronto, at $3.05 is just about out of the question. No forty-eights, no trips home—nostalgia.

The Exploit Which Won a New Zealander the V.C.

During the British fighting in Greece, a German armoured column containing armoured cars, 2-inch guns, 3-inch mortars and two 6-inch guns converged on a large force of British and New Zealand troops. The order to retreat was given to the Allied forces, but Sergeant John Daniel Hinton shouting "To hell with that; who'll come with me?" ran to within several yards of the nearest gun, which fired but missed him. He hurled two grenades which completely wiped out the crew, then went in with his bayonet, as depicted in this artist's impression, killed by other New Zealanders. The enemy retreated into two houses, where they were held until overwhelming German forces arrived. Hinton fell with a bullet wound in the stomach and was taken prisoner.

"Air Force" Headquarters has met the situation courageously by absolutely prohibiting the practice of hitch-hiking rides along the King's most excellent highways.

"But so long as lamps are placed in windows, sons, both erring and errant, will find their ways to home—be there snow or rain, or sleet, or hail, or even Air Force Routine Order No. 3654892378.

"It has remained for the tiny village of Aurora to actually do something about the problem. Aurora announces that it will erect a cozy building at each highway entrance where penurious and homesick patriots may gather to wait for kindly motorists. The same kindly motorists will have their attention directed to the haven by well-placed publicity.

"Service men will no longer live the highways in danger of motor cars and Air Force wrath. Air Force Headquarters will be more than happy about the whole thing. The fair name of Aurora will live long and happily in the hearts of the Service."

Britain Makes No Exceptions When Law Is Broken

The British people, states the Huron Expositor, Seaford, have often been accused by their American brothers and cousins of being slow, but no one yet has ever accused them of not being thorough.

And that goes as well in the matter of fines for infractions of war restrictions.

Woodlands Chemists, Ltd., of London, was fined forty thousand pounds, which runs close to two hundred thousand dollars in our money, for exceeding its cosmetics sales quota under Britain's wartime rationing laws, and was given three months to pay the fine.

By the time the company succeeds in paying that fine they will be looking back upon their profits and dividends as vanishing cream, a highly prized cosmetic in women's lives, but something which the company will be very chary of disposing of in future.

Putting It Into Figures

The American Petroleum Institute estimates that each tanker sunk means that 100,000 automobiles are deprived of their principal source of fuel. Figuring that each tanker carried 62,000,000 gallons of fuel, the institute said this was about equal to the consumption of 100,000 passenger cars at 650 gallons each or of 35,000 domestic oil burners at 1,800 gallons each.

Famous Sign Falls Victim To War Effort

For the past six years this spectacular sign has thrilled the Broadway crowds. To see the Great White Way, and the Wright sign in particular because it was the largest, was one thing that thrilled the visitors to New York from all over the world. It was decided to discontinue this beautiful sign strictly as an economic measure. The sign was 75 feet high and 192 feet long. It contained 35,000 lamps and consumed as much electric current as would be needed in illuminating a town of 10,000 population. From an economic standpoint and in an effort to help win the war, the officials of the company decided it was the right thing to do. What the country needs today are ships, tanks, airplanes, and guns, and to produce these weapons of war takes lots of power.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

APRIL 12

THE MISSION OF THE SEVENTY

Golden text: The harvest indeed is plentiful, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest. Luke 10:2.
Lesson: Luke 10:1-24.
Devotional reading: Psalm 67.

Explanations and Comments

The Seventy Sent on a Mission, Luke 10:1-3. As Jesus had sent out the Twelve (Luke 9:1-19), so now he sent out seventy others. The text reads, Now after these things (the incidents recorded in Luke 9:46-49), the Lord appointed seventy others; but the appointment was for a special service, not as in the case of the Twelve, for permanent work. Jesus sent them out in companies of two for mutual help and companionship (The twelve also were thus sent, Mark 6, 7) and bade them go into the cities which he himself was planning to visit after their preliminary work.

We have all admired the wondrous wisdom of that shrewd, sagacious plan. There is no evidence that Jesus relied much upon conferences, congresses, and the like. As a permanent factor in character-building he trusted to the influence of a companion rather than to the inspiration of a crowd. He was a great believer in those walks, side by side, along the winding Galilean highways.

The Counsel Given the Seventy, Luke 10:4-11. On entering a house, they were to utter the familiar "salutation," or friendly greeting of "Peace be to this house"—a prayer that the household might be blessed in every respect. "And if a son of peace [a beautiful phrase for one inclined to peace] be there," Jesus added, "your peace shall rest upon him."

In the home which welcomes you, remain, freely enjoying its hospitality, for the sustaining of my messengers is not a charity but a debt, and the laborer is worthy of his hire.

The Mission of the Seventy Crowned with Success, Luke 10:17-20. The Seventy returned with joy, and reported that even the demons had been subject to them in the name of Jesus. By a figure of speech (verses 18 and 19) Jesus declared that in their success he saw a prophecy of the ultimate conquest of his kingdom over the whole world.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY?

The purpose of doing a play is to communicate to an audience the dramatic vision of the playwright. To do this it is necessary to examine some of the characteristics of the play in order to determine how the actor or actress should play the role. Or re-create the part in the pattern set out in the script by the author. I am going to suggest three ways of approaching this problem:

Analyzing The Part

1. What did the author intend that I should contribute to the whole play? Let us make a survey of the whole play first. Is it tragedy, or comedy or farce? Or is it fantasy or is it a pageant, or is it something improbable a figment of someone's imagination. Is it a play for entertainment? Or does it stir up your emotions and you go home solving the problem, and deciding what you would do if you were in that same situation?

Find The Purpose Of Your Part

2. If you have one of the leading roles in the show this should not be hard, watch your part in the play pattern. If you have a minor role, it may take a little more discovering. But each part is important, small or large, and if one little cog is missing the wheel will not run smoothly, neither will the play run smoothly if every part is not there and co-operating.

Stage Business

3. The actions the audience see—are found in brackets throughout the script and are usually there to give a fine index to many characteristics and help you with your biography.

At the end of any play, the audience may not be familiar with the technical terms but they know whether it was a convincing performance. I do not approve of allowing the cast to go down into the audience at the end of the play to receive the congratulations of the special friends; the cast know whether they did a good show and where they fell down. If they don't receive too many nice remarks they will endeavor to do better next time. But if they mingle with a group of admiring friends, they soon lose their balance and go home feeling that all the mistakes in the play were someone else's fault. Enraged this time.—Mary Ellen Burgess, Box 326, Reg 'na.

FATIGUE IN WORKERS

Since war was declared, with the attendant necessity to 'step up' production in factories, the work of industrial physiologists has been doubled and tripled. What makes a man produce so much work in one day, only half his output the next day, then double his production another day? Is it the length of time he works, the colour of the factory walls, or what he had for breakfast that influences his work output?

Some light is thrown on the subject by Dr. A. C. Ivy, well-known physiologist of Northwestern University, who spoke recently at the Congress on Industrial Health, convening in Chicago.

"Recently it was clearly demonstrated," said Dr. Ivy, "that the output of a group of workers in a shoe factory, who ate the ordinary three meals a day, was materially increased by providing a forenoon and afternoon lunch of a glass of milk and a piece of cake. The lunches prevented the usual falling off in production in the latter half of the morning and afternoon. It was concluded that the decrease in output was not due to the work performed, but to the operators' need of food."

However, Dr. Ivy indicated that a glass of milk and a piece of cake was not the complete answer. When this was first tried, output was stepped up for a while, but later production resumed pretty much its original speed. It did, however, give the workers additional valuable minerals and probably indirectly kept the health of the workers at a higher level.

"The problem of what creates fatigue in workers cannot be solved by any group," says Dr. Ivy. "The physiologist and director of personnel have much to contribute. The physician can contribute by giving advice regarding the health and nutrition of the worker. Wise eating may be the answer."

"ALL THAT GLITTERS"

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XVI.

Tamar was shaking so that the bushes bowed. She hastily stepped back, keeping within seeing distance of the two men in the car. Her heart pounded madly as the one called Nick started to get out.

"Don't get jumpy, Nick. This kind of job takes some real cast iron nerves. And as I said before, it has to be timed absolutely so that nothing will happen." Tamar lost the next few words as the major stepped on the starter. Well, I guess the place will do, but I wanted to see for my own eyes. We'll work the rest out in the office.

Tamar watched them leave with widening eyes. Something was about to take place that included she knew not what kind of crime. Nor did she know the time or the nature of the plot. The only thing she knew for certain was that this old picnic spot had suddenly become a potential scene for some black deed.

She waited until she was sure that the car had turned back on the main highway, and then she mounted Madcap and rode slowly along the trail. She could take no chances on those two men seeing her.

Tamar turned Madcap toward home. She heard a car behind her and started nervously, but as it passed she saw that the driver was Ransome Todd. She wondered what he was doing away from his office at the bank this time of the day. He waved a friendly arm in greeting and stopped, pulling off the highway onto the shoulder of the road.

"Having a ride?" he asked, as though he had just talked with Dr. Forrester and had come out purposefully to find her.

As Tamar pulled up beside him, he saw that her face was white and her eyes deeply disturbed. He wanted to lift her boldly out of Madcap's saddle and drive away with her and never give her up.

"If I drive slowly, can we walk Madcap back to Shadwell, behind the car?"

"Thanks, Ranny." Her voice was deep with something intangible. "Oh, I do want to talk with some one, Ranny." She looked anxiously down the road. "Did you meet Major Towne and some one just now in his big car?"

"Yes. They sped by me, breaking every one of Georgia's speed laws. I noticed especially, because I heard Sheriff Mack say that he intended clamping down again. There's been a lot of that since the Cricket Hills opened up."

Ran got out and tied Madcap to the back of the car. "I'll drive slowly enough so that it won't hurt, her feet." He got in beside Tamar and they rolled back on the paving. He looked at her questioningly.

Tamar said: "I hardly know how to begin. You've been right all along, Ranny. You never have trusted Major Towne, and now I have reason to believe that your judgment is correct."

Ransome said sharply, "Go ahead, Tam. What have you found out?"

"I went to our old picnic grounds, tied Madcap down the bank some distance, and went for a swim."

After she had cried her heart out about her mother, Ransome thought to himself. He could see the tell-tale marks on her eyelids, even though the cool waters of the Cheateau had almost obliterated them. "Yes?"

"And while I was drying out in the breeze, I heard a car coming along the trail. I dashed for my clothes and dressed quickly, for fear of being discovered. The car belonged to Major Towne and one of his assistants. They sat there and talked about that being a good place for whatever they were contemplating."

"What do you mean?"

"That's what I don't know. It sounds so silly. Major Towne said that they'd have to be sure of it because they couldn't afford to take any chances. The other man said that Fatten had told him that no one ever came there, and that he had hired some 'really tough birds' to do the job. Oh, Ranny, what could it be?"

"That's what we'll have to find out. When is this to take place?"

"They didn't say exactly. One said the men would be here in about two weeks."

"If I so much as catch you outside the well-known and well-travelled bridge paths around Shadwell, I'm going to give you the spanking of your life." Ransome said grimly.

"Tamar Randolph, I hope this will teach you a thing or three! What if they'd found you there this morning, after they'd discussed all their intentions?"

Two large crystal drops rolled down Tamar's cheeks. Her silence was appalling, and Ran looked at her in time to see her wipe the tears away. Ranny was abashed.

He left his office to find her and try to offer her comfort after the blow she had just received about her mother's condition, and here he had callously made her cry.

They were nearing the house now, and Ransome stopped the car, untied Madcap, led her to a gate and slipped the saddle off. He gave her a friendly little slap and turned her loose.

"We're going to take the afternoon off," Ran said to Tamar, when he got back into the car. "I'm going to kidnap you for the day."

"I really do want to go back and see Mother, Ranny." The red lips trembled and Ransome wanted to kiss them.

"Didn't you sent word by Phoebe that you were going to Selby's for the afternoon?"

"How did you know?" Mother would wonder why she had changed her plans, and that would certainly need some explanation.

"I called. I ran into Uncle Doc just after you were there, honey." Ran slipped his strong hand over her small one.

His comforting fingers touched Tamar like no words could possibly have done. She suddenly knew why he was away from the office. That was like Ranny. He had left his work to find her so that he could help lessen the shock of the doctor's words.

Ransome paused briefly at the entrance of the brown columns at the lane. "Shall we go up to the house or do we take off the next few hours?"

Tamar's little fingers curled up over his long brown hand. "It will be better to stay away for a while longer, then I won't have to explain.

I don't want Mother to realize that I know about her. She would worry about it so."

Ransome drove on past the two columns, and, speeding up the car a little, said: "Let's get a picnic lunch and go to the old mill on Whiffie Creek."

"Oh, Ranny, let's! Why, it's been years since we've been there."

Tamar realized suddenly that she had not thought about Christopher Sande during the last two hours, even if she were in love with him. Ransome drove the car up in front of a general store in the little town. "Do you want to help me select the lunch?"

"Of course." She wanted to go with Ran. She didn't want to remember Christopher just now. What could he possibly have to do with comforting her about her mother? And what part could he share in her new discovery about the Major, when he was under the man's employ? No, not Christopher today. Today she was very glad to have Ransome Todd with her. He would know just what to say and do.

They went into the store and, after much playful banter, selected the things that each liked.

The blazing sun was at its highest and sent off a dazzling shimmer from Ranny's polished car. He drove faster now, and in a few minutes came to the old road that led to the widest part of the Cheateau where an ancient mill wheel creaked in the nearby branch of Whiffie Creek.

Ranny parked the car in the clearing. The old cabin was weather-beaten and the roof sagged at one end. "I'll bet it's full of rats and ghosts," said Tamar as they stood looking at it.

"We'll investigate later. I'll build a fire at once."

Tamar untied the packages and spread out a paper lunch set on a big flat stone. Then they ate their picnic lunch.

"I'm too full to talk or even think," Tamar said finally. Ranny picked up everything and put the packages back neatly into the cardboard box, and into the car. He came back and sat down beside her. They were silent for a long time, lazily watching the water.

"The stone-age had a lot of advantages in a way," Ranny said.

"In what way?" Tamar asked casually, moving a stick through the sand.

"Well, a man could fight for his girl with his hands," he said abruptly.

Gardening

No Need To Rush

It will not hurt to plant peas, spinach, lettuce or radish just as soon as the ground is ready. For the medium-hardy type of plant, however, there is no advantage whatever in sowing too soon. There is little growth in any case until the soil really turns warm.

Gardeners are advised to divide their vegetable seed into at least three parts, sowing a third as soon as weather permits, a third a little later, and the balance at the very tail-end of the planting season. In this way if frost does cut down the first batch there will be more plants coming on, and the season will be lengthened by the last part of the garden sowing.

Hot Beds

A hot bed for starting garden seeds only is usually prepared in March. It consists of a bed of fresh horse manure, which supplies the heat, about 18 inches deep. On the top two or three inches of fine soil is placed and after the bed has heated up and then cooled down again a matter of three or four days, the seed is sown in rows a few inches apart. The bed is protected by rough boarding along the side and on top, and sloping towards the South about 10 to 15 inches above the bed. If only a few plants are wanted, these may be started from seeds sown in flat boxes indoors and placed in sunny windows.

Give Them Rooms

As a general rule, shrubs, trees and flowers should have half as much room between as their mature height. This means at least two feet apart for perennials, three and a half feet for the ordinary spires, and twenty-five to fifty feet for the general run of Canadian hardwood trees.

At first this may seem far too open, but the space may be taken up with annual flowers, in the case of a perennial bed, and with temporary, quick-growing shrubbery and trees, with the others.

Icebergs are formed of fresh water, since they are formed on land as glaciers, and break off as icebergs when they reach the sea. 2458

Making War Gauges

Many Machine Shops In Canada Now Busy On Production

Approximately 85 Canadian machine shops are manufacturing the 25,000 types of gauges required in Canada for production of munitions used in modern mechanized warfare, the munitions and supply department announced.

"Expanded from a group of five shops in 1939, this essential industry is expected this year to double the number of basic items being produced," the department said.

Used in manufacturing or inter-checking parts of machines, guns, or ammunition, gauges are made of bronze, aluminum and steel. Two types of gauges are made one for the manufacturer and the other for government inspectors.

Since the start of the war, the department said, orders have been placed for 15,000 gauges representing an expenditure of more than $4,500,000.

Materials Scarce

Road Work In Canada Will Be Curtailed This Year

Building and repairing of roads in Canada will be curtailed this year because of shortage of asphalt, petroleum asphalt and steel, sometimes used to reinforce concrete highways. New construction will be restricted to roads regarded as vital defence arteries and for links between existing roads and new military plants or war camps.

GAY VANITY TABLE

IS EASY TO MAKE Underneath It's A Packing Box This is what your bedroom needs—A Southern-belle vanity! Between pretty ruffles of red-dotted white swiss you get tantalizing glimpses of red ribbon run through, leading and tied in bows.

You can make the table from a packing box. Stand the box on end, with open side front, and nail on a kidney-bean shaped board for the top. On this you stretch first a piece of white satin lining, then a piece of dotted swiss, tuck each at edges. Make the skirt lining as long as from top to floor and the same width as around front and sides. Measure twice width for ruffles and vary ruffles in depth.

Sew heading to the top of each ruffle and fasten the ruffles to the lining with double-stap tape (except on the top one, basted on). So you can wash the lining, too, just double-stap it to table.

Darling, with pretty curtains and bedspread to match! Our 32-page booklet tells details of making the vanity. Also tells how to make inexpensively a book-rack side table, pillow tops, pot holders, many other attractive items for yourself or as gifts.

Made Journey Safely

But Seals Face Danger In Pacific During Fall Trip

Happily unaware that the American continent is now engaged in a life and death struggle with Japan, the Alaskan seal herd has run the gauntlet of enemy warships and arrived in safety at their spring quarters off the coast of California.

Alaskan seals are creatures of habit. They bask off the American shore for five months, and then punctually every May they head north for the island of Pribilof, Alaska. Here the young seals are born, and learn sufficient prowess in the art of swimming to undertake the return journey. The young three-year-old males disport themselves separately in bachelor freedom, and a due proportion are killed for the sake of their skins—to make fur coats for ladies or a hat for Mr. Churchill.

The seal industry was, until recently, a joint arrangement between the United States, Canada and Japan; the valuable herd had, by careful conservation, grown to over 2 1/2 million head. Japan is now an enemy and her 15 per cent. share is denied her. With sinister emphasis she says that the situation will not prevent her from killing on sight any seal who happens to get within her range.

Here lies the danger for next season. In the middle of September the herd leaves the comparative safety of the Alaskan coast and heads south via Japanese waters. In the vast expanse of the Pacific it fans out, each individual or family going off on its own concerns until January when they all foregather on the islands off California.

The diversion of human traffic from a danger zone is a task calling merely for "No Road" signs, a broadcast to motorists, or a handful of police on motorcycles. But can the Alaskan seal herd be warned next October to take the return journey down the American and Canadian coast instead of their habitual route by way of Japanese waters? Here is a nice problem for the scientist, the zoologist, and the fur administrator to solve.

Seeding Wheat Early

Early seeding of wheat is not so urgent as it was before the early ripening sorts were adopted. A date Noted Financier Puzzled His Lawyer has been found best at Swift Current Experimental Station. The recommendation is that oats and barley be seeded first as they get most benefit from the early moisture.

Calculated In Minutes

Contracts awarded and commitments made by the department of munitions and supply last year totalled $210,000,000 or the equivalent of a $14,000 contract every minute of the day.

University Professor Has Scheme For Bombing Volcanoes

A university professor has an original scheme for ending the war with Japan—start Nippon's volcanoes erupting.

Dr. Harold O. Whitnall, professor of geology at Colgate University, asserts that aerial bombs could burst the plugs in the "throats" of volcanoes.

The pent-up pressure of gases in the bowels of the volcano, he says, would send lava tumbling down on Japanese cities and might produce earthquakes and tidal waves.

It takes 700 gallons of water to quench one ton of red hot coke.

OLD VIRTUES NEEDED

No individual can keep up his peace-time outlay and be able to take his fair share of the obligations inseparable from Canada's participation in the war. This is just as true of governments as it is of individuals. The prudent way of living will be the simple life and it may be that this will also be the healthiest and most wholesome life as well.—Amherst News, Nova Scotia.
